

THE SOUTHERNER

SATURDAY, - - - Oct. 13, 1866

A SONG.

BY THOMAS DUCHANAN READ.
Bring the juice of the honey fruit,
The large translucent, amber-hued,
Rare grapes of Southern isles to suit
The luxury that fills my mood.

And bring me only such as grew
Where fairest maidens tend the hovers,
And only fed by rain and dew
Which first had bathed a bank of flowers.

They must have hung on spicy trees,
In air of far enchanted vales,
And all night heard the ecstasies
Of noble-throated nightingales.

So that the virtues which belong
To flowers may therein tasted be,
And that which has been thrilled with song
May give a thrill of song to me.

For I would wake that string for thee
Which hath too long in silence hung,
And sweeter than all else should be
The song which in thy praise is sung.

CLIPPINGS

"The easiest way to get a living," says a vagabond poet, "is to sit on a gut post and wait for good luck. In case good luck don't come along, you are no worse off than you were before."

Jared Ingersoll, a lawyer, for stealing books was sentenced to two years and one month's confinement in the county jail, in Philadelphia on Saturday.

The wonderful operation of the infusion of blood from the veins of a healthy person into a sickly one has just been performed at Vienna with complete success. The healthy person operated upon was the husband, the sickly the wife.

Two sparks from London, while enjoying themselves among the heather in Argyleshire, Scotland, last autumn, came upon a decent-looking shepherd residing on the top of the hill. They accosted him by remarking: "You have fine view here; you will see a great way." "O, aye, a ferry good way." "Ah! you will see America from here." "Farrer than that," said Donald. "Ah! how's that?" "O, just wait till the mist gangs away, as you'll see the mune."

A young man in Illinois who was greatly smitten with a neighbor's daughter and wanted her for his wife, in order to win her unsophisticated heart, invited her to go with him to a circus that was "showing" in the vicinity. She accepted the invitation, and as they neared the ticket wagon the young man rushed upon his fate by asking her suddenly if she would marry him. "No, thank you," she replied. "You won't eh!" exclaimed the ardent youth; "then buy your own ticket!" She took his advice and enjoyed the show greatly, but he didn't.

There were four good habits a wise man earnestly recommended in his counsels, and which he considered to be essentially necessary for the management of temporal concerns; and these are punctuality, accuracy, steadiness and dispatch. Without the first of these time is wasted, without the second mistakes, the most hurtful to own credit and interest and that of others, may be committed; without the third nothing can be well done; and without the fourth opportunities of great advantage are lost which it is impossible to recall.

A bachelor boarder in a house at Toledo, O., overheard the servant girl Mary say she had dreamed that No. 6301 would draw the $10,000 prize in one of the Chicago gift concerns. She resolved to invest, but he tried to dissuade her, though to no purpose, and at her request he wrote a letter ordering that number. When the drawing took place the dream proved true, and the man, without telling Mary of the result, suddenly proposed to her, was accepted, and they were privately married. He then announced her good fortune, but was amazed to learn that after the letter was written his arguments induced her not to send it. So he had the wife without the $10,000; but he accepts the situation.

In the war carried on by one of the Popes a general engagement became, from the position of the armies, unavoidable. A Cardinal went through the ranks exhorting the Papal troops to exertion, for the honor of the States of the Holy See, following this up with a complete remission of all their sins, and concluding with an assurance that such of them as died that day would dine with the angels in heaven. After this reasonable harangue, his eminence was retiring, like a soldier observing, said to him, "And you, my Lord Cardinal, won't you remain with us, and go and dine in Paradise?" "My friend," answered the Cardinal, "I should gladly be of the party, but my dinner hour has not yet come, for I have no appetite."
